Ten probationers were appointed in the Education Department during the year under report and a programme for their training extending over a period of two years was approved.

The Director has stressed the need for the re-organisation of the studies in high schools, so as to provide such variety as would suit the main types of abilities and aptitude of pupils on the one hand and the requirement of their after-school life on the other and for the necessity of trained teachers in the department for all grades of education. These will be considered when proposals in the matter are submitted to Government.
